

Here Is the List of Contestants

In The Washington Herald's Great Prize-giving Contest.

Special Notice

The vote totals opposite each candidate's name in to-day's announcement include only those ballots cast up to 6 p. m. Thursday last. All votes cast after that time are not included in this count. There were so many votes polled after that hour that it was impossible to include them in this announcement, but they will appear in the next report, which will be published in The Washington Herald on Thursday, April 15. Any apparent shortage in vote totals can probably be traced to the ballots having been cast after the polls closed Thursday evening.

IF YOU have inspected this list of Contestants you will be compelled to acknowledge that this Contest is arousing interest among the most prominent people of Washington. They appreciate the fact that great praise is due The Washington Herald for having gathered together such a magnificent array of Prizes to be awarded simply for securing subscriptions to a daily paper. This promises to be a good-natured battle of ballots, and while a great number have already picked their favorites—as is evidenced by the length of this list—it is rather disappointing to us that there are not more in the race. We expect more nominations to come in, however, though they are slow enough about it. Some of the candidates have already grasped the idea that more and better results can be obtained by gathering in subscriptions than by walking all over town collecting the ten-vote coupons. To be sure, these coupons should not be overlooked entirely, as each one counts ten votes in your favor, but they are so few when compared with the number of votes a subscription

Nominations Are Not Closed.

Any one may enter this contest up to the very last day of the race. Our offer of $21,000 in prizes holds good until this contest is closed, and the prizes will be given away just the same, even if there is not another vote cast. But you may rest assured that there will be others coming in. You're going to send in some yourself, are you not? Of course you are. You're not going to allow this opportunity to slip by you unnoticed. You've had your eyes opened for a long time, looking for just such an opening as this, and now it's come.

of even one month will secure for you that little time should be wasted in gathering the coupons. Not only are we furnishing these Prizes free, but we are trying to help you win the one of your choice. If you will follow the advice and suggestions as published daily in The Washington Herald, you will win in spite of yourself. Whoever wins this House and Lot is going to be happy in the possession of it for the rest of his life. In fact, the happy winner of any one of these Prizes will be repaid many times over for the time he has spent in getting subscriptions to The Washington Herald. When you send or bring in your nominations to the Contest Department, be sure to ask for receipt books. These are to be used when securing subscriptions. The entire force of the Contest Department is at your service. We are interested in you and want to get you interested in The Washington Herald.
